Final Recital Preparations

This semester, I was awarded funding by the Miller Arts Scholars for some of the final preparations for my Distinguished Major Project/Recital, which will take place in March of 2024. I worked with Kate MacArthur, a student photographer, to take pictures of me with my flute to put on the posters for my recital, as well as general headshots for professional use throughout my post-college career. Here are my five favorites, though there is an album with dozens:

I am really happy with how these turned out, and I think several of them can adapt very well to posters come spring semester! I have also begun rehearsals with my accompanist, Shelby Sender, and have worked together with her and my private lesson instructor/mentor. These rehearsals will continue into the spring semester. Thanks to the Miller Arts Scholars for their support of this project!
